Did you become a particularly vulnerable victim of a crime?

The Justýna Counselling Centre will help you defend your rights.

Who is a particularly vulnerable victim?

- Minors (under 18)
- The elderly
- People with disabilities
- Victims of sexual violence
- Victims of prejudicial attacks
- Victims of human trafficking
- Victims dependant on the offender
- Victims of crimes that included violence
- Victims of crimes committed on behalf of an organized crime group
- Victims of terrorist attacks

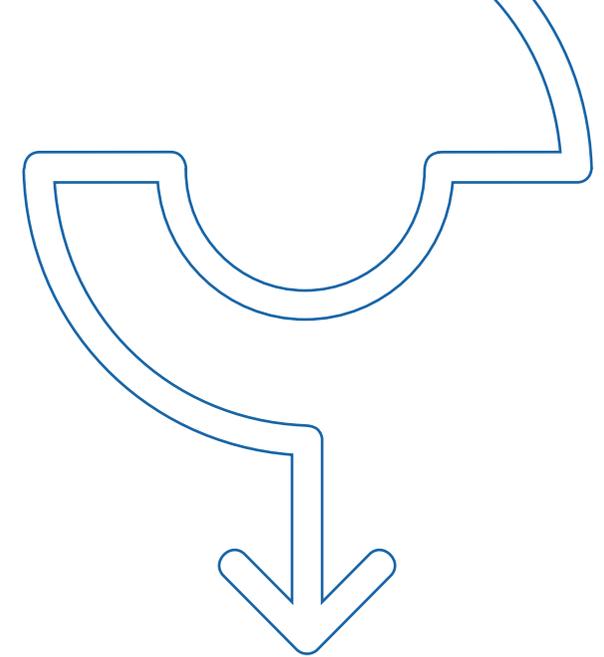

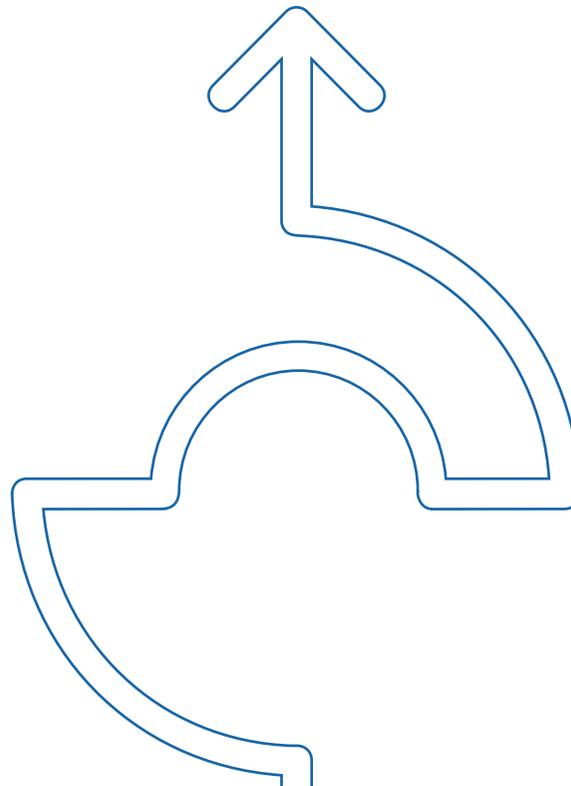

Particularly vulnerable victims are more susceptible to secondary victimization, and as such, they have enhanced rights according to the Act on the rights of victims of crime. Secondary victimization is a process that causes further harm to the victim during the investigation, court proceedings, etc.

The enhanced rights help prevent this injury to the victim.

What can you do to take care of yourself?

- You can contact the police by calling 158 or make a criminal complaint.
- If you are in immediate danger, seek out a public place (hospital, post office, etc.)
- Ask a specific person for help. If you ask a group of anonymous people, it is less likely someone will help you.
- If you were injured, seek out medical help. Document your injury in a medical report and by taking photos. You can use these as evidence.
- Confide in someone you trust.
- If the matter is less serious (a misdemeanour), apply for it to be investigated at the relevant municipal office.
- You can also defend yourself from prejudicial treatment by bringing a defamation action before a civil or administrative court.
- Contact the Justyna Counselling Centre.

The Justyna Counselling Centre will help you defend your rights.

You have the right to

- Information and free expert assistance
- Information in a language you can understand, even at the police.
- Short-term protection provided by the police
- The eviction of a person from a shared household
- Interim measures in case your life, health, freedom, or dignity are severely threatened by the offender
- Concealing your identity and other personal data in the file (such as your address)
- Avoiding contact with the offender
- You have the right to choose whether you will be interrogated by a man or a woman.
- A one-off interrogation conducted sensitively.
- Accompaniment to the interrogation by a confidante and representation by an agent.
- Financial assistance to overcome an adverse financial situation after a criminal offence
- Compensation for damages in the criminal proceedings
